Humanitarian Action is necessary for global issues:

Complex man-made crises, conflicts, violence and unrests have become a global concern for the international community. Designing interventions in these extremely volatile environments requires specific knowledge and skills, to minimize negative impacts and maximize opportunities for positive and sustainable changes.

Solid partnerships build on experience:

Built on the expertise of UNITAR and Oxford Brookes University (OBU), the Master in Humanitarian Action and Peacebuilding explores the interactions between these two fields, by linking theory with practice and applied knowledge. The programme envisages online lectures, webinars, discussions with key practitioners and the sharing of experiences, critical reflections, within the framework of an action research-based approach. The aim of the programme is to enhance reflective practices, learning from their workplace, combining the art of conflict-sensitive approaches to humanitarian and peacebuilding programming with the appreciation of the wider context in which these interventions unfold.

The Master’s Programme:

The programme is designed for practitioners working in the fields of humanitarian action and peacebuilding, though it is open also to personnel working in related fields seeking to develop a more holistic understanding of critical issues related to humanitarian action and peacebuilding.

Main topics covered by the Master in Humanitarian Action and Peacebuilding include:

- Contexts of humanitarian action and peacebuilding;
- Theories and practices related to the different dimensions of humanitarian action and peacebuilding – with a specific focus on protection actions;
- Methods and tools (for mapping, assessment, management, etc.), needed by practitioners working in the fields of humanitarian action and peacebuilding to address current and emerging challenges.

Key features:

- Innovative, multi-disciplinary and multi-cultural design;
- Highly interactive approach and student-centered approach with a specific focus on exchange of experiences;
- Access to a unique community of professionals and researchers and an unparalleled support from a team of academic experts and top-ranked practitioners as well as field experts for specific topics;
- Flexible and user-friendly online learning environment allowing you to learn from your workplace;
- Investigating cutting-edge issues in the field of humanitarian action and peacebuilding, proposing innovative tools and reflecting on current field practices;
- Designed and delivered jointly by Oxford Brookes University and the United Nations Institute for Training and Research (UNITAR) offering you access to resources and support from both institutions online and in the field through UN missions;
- Founded on action-research, and on populations and employers’ direct needs in humanitarian and peacebuilding programming.
